DETAILED ACTION

This office action is in response to the response to restriction requirement filed on 7/14/06.

Election/Restrictions

1. The restriction requirement has been withdrawn. Thus, all claims (1-19) are being examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 2, 8, 10-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Maeda (US 5,802,841).

Maeda (Figures 9 and 10 particularly) teaches a combustor liner comprising a plurality of angled strips 27b integrally formed on an outer surface of said liner, said angled strip having a V shape and creating vortices on a cooling air flowing in a longitudinal direction across said outside surface of said combustor liner, said angles strips having a flat top, a space between each of said plurality of angles strips includes a lateral space and a longitudinal space, each angled strip having a height of about 0.02 inches to about 0.12 inches (as illustrated in Figure 10), said angled strips have an angle from a horizontal direction from about 30-60 degrees, said combustion liner is enclosed by a sleeve (Figure 8),. See particularly Figures 9 and 10; cl. 9 ll. 49-55; and cl. 11 ll. 25-30.

Art Unit: 3746

4. Claims 1, 8, 13 and 16-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bunker (US 6,722,134).

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application. Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Bunker (Figure 2) teaches a combustor liner comprising a plurality of angled strips 16 integrally formed on an outer surface of said liner, said angled strip creating vortices on a cooling air flowing in a longitudinal direction across said outside surface of said combustor liner, said angles strips having a flat top, said angled strips have an angle from a horizontal direction from about 30-60 degrees. See particularly Figure 2; cl. 1 ll. 6-24; and cl. 2 ll. 47-50.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3-7 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
